Dave,

In general, since I tried to stay out of the climate wars, I've not published extensively on my views. It's mostly a sentence or two in a large number of papers saying that the difficulty of observing signals should not be taken as showing they are not present.

The nearest I've come to trying to write out a coherent view is a chapter in a forthcoming book which I have attached. The book is to be published both in French and English sometime soon (supposedly). It's a bit long and semi-technical but perhaps addresses the issue. Although not yet out, it was written long before the Channel 4 film was made.

The book is edited by Jean-Louis FELLOUS and Catherine GAUTIER and called "Facing Climate Change Together" and is being published by Odile Jacob, Paris.
